OFFICE MEMORANDUM

Subject: Call for Nominations for the World Bank Government Analytics Fellowship Program

The World Bank has invited applications from dedicated public servants for the Government Analytics Fellowship Program. This prestigious initiative, based on the pioneering Government Analytics Handbook, aims to empower governments by leveraging data for actionable insights and improved public administration.

2. Key Features of the Fellowship:

- Participate in an immersive 6-month program, with a core commitment of 2 weeks of in-person training in Washington, D.C which includes the Public Administration Forum and Government Analytics course.
- Gain first-hand knowledge from the experts behind the Government Analytics Handbook.
- Develop a Government Analytics project with support from The World Bank and University College London senior experts.
- Connect with a collaborative network of public servants, data experts, and academics.

3. Benefits of the Fellowship:

- Gain Data-Driven Insights and expertise to harness vast amounts of governmental data, translating it into actionable insights for smarter decision-making and policy development.
- Catalyze Change in your Government with cutting-edge research and expert support to implement systemic changes in your government's operations.
- Join a Collaborative Network of like-minded government officials, data experts, academics, and professionals

4. Eligibility Criteria:

To apply, officers must meet the following requirements:

- Availability to travel to Washington, D.C. for in-person training (from 17th March to 27th March 2025).
- Nomination by their organization (up to two fellows per organization).
- Employment in central government organizations, including agencies.
- Holding mid-level management or senior analyst positions with authority to develop a government analytics project.
- Prior tertiary-level coursework in statistics or related quantitative methods.
- Proficiency in English.
